2017 Bishop

With versatile Ben Glaetzer holding the baton, it's little wonder this consummate expression of Barossa Valley shiraz is in such impeccable shape. Accessing vines up to a century old enabled him to create a wine with super power and finesse befitting the region and the winemaker's booming status. .

A whiff of neoprene reduction soon blows violet off to reveal a sinuous wine of equal parts flesh and hewn bone: violet aromas segue to smoked charcuterie notes and a melody of blue to dark fruit tones. Setting the pace, while corralling the wine's inherent generosity into shape, is well handled oak and savvy extraction techniques. The result is one of crowd-pleasing generosity on one hand; a visage of serious ageability on the other.

I love the cool seasons in the Barossa, and 2017 has blessed the old Shiraz vines of Ebenezer with magnificent lift and vibrant poise. Red cherry and plum fruit is lifted by fragrant rose hip and spice, energised by vibrant acidity and structured with graceful tannins. A great Bishop.

2017 Bishop, 91 Points

Like all of the Glaetzer bottlings tasted this year, the fruit comes from the Ebenezer subregion in the northern reaches of the Barossa Valley. The 2017 Bishop Shiraz combines blueberry and boysenberry fruit on the nose, and flavors from the fruit flow easily across the palate, picking up hints of raspberries and baking spices. It's medium to full-bodied, supple and juicy, with a long mouthwatering finish.

Dark, dense red/purple colour. An oaky bouquet with dark chocolate and cocoa powder aromas, the palate fruit-sweet and mouth-watering, more fruit-driven and refreshing. It's crisp and energising on the finish and aftertaste.

2017 Bishop, 92 Points

A rich shiraz with plenty of ripe blackberry and plum aromas and flavors, as well as baking spices. Quite long, plush and assertive tannins. Drink or hold.
